

#Target2030

For People, Planet and Prosperity

#Target2030 is an inspiring movement for change to make every 3-18 learning setting in Scotland sustainable by 2030, and for all learners to receive their Learning for Sustainability entitlement. This is about putting people, planet and prosperity at the heart of our education system and collectively responding to the urgent challenges we face such as climate change, inequality and our rapidly changing world.

Everyone has a role to play and can make a difference. Here is how you can help.

Learners – Your opinions and actions matter! Learn, explore and get involved.

Continue to tell those with power what is important to you, to influence decisions that affect you, and to be actively involved in Learning for Sustainability where you learn and live.

Educators – Bring Learning for Sustainability to life with your learners and share what's working for you with others across Scotland.

We ask that you include Learning for Sustainability in the daily experiences for your learners, and share stories of the difference Learning for Sustainability is making to your practice.

Senior education leaders – Make Learning for Sustainability a priority and be part of Scotland's essential journey to #Target2030.

Consider the possibilities of Learning for Sustainability in your setting and community, and make it a priority as you continue to develop your curriculum for our rapidly changing world.

Local and national leaders – Support #Target2030 in your organisation, and highlight the benefits for people, planet and prosperity.

Make this plan part of your wider strategy and approach: demonstrate leadership, challenge peers and colleagues, so we can accelerate progress towards the #Target2030.

Families and communities – Let's work together to bring Learning for Sustainability to life where we live.

Work together as a community to empower all learners to take an active role in making where we live, learn and play better for all.
